Summary of Chapter 1 abing of Carlotta's home is "wrapped up" in this chapter. Herbert and Maceo, the two •	re being held for trial. The segregationist spokesmen, including Faubus, are congratulatory that	justice prevailed and whites were not involved. No one in the black community believes this story a	nd knows that the men have been scapegoated. Even the media is no longer making a connection between	the bombing of Carlotta's home and the integration of the high school. Police Chief Eugene Smith and h	nis wife are found dead. The event is called a murder-suicide, but Carlotta feels certain they were m	urdered. Smith was hated by white supremacists. Herbert is tried for the bombing and sentenced to fiv	e years in prison.
